DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous lining. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

METHUEN.

DESCRIPTION OF NEVINS' HOME.

The Boston Sunday Globe contains a very complete description of the new home for the aged and incurable, which is being erected on the old Ingalls place on Broadway in memory of the late Henry Coffin Nevins. The architect is H. M. Stephenson, Boston. Says the Globe:

"The work of construction is now well under way and it is expected that the building will be completed and ready for occupancy by Jan. 1, 1906. The style is not unlike that of the old English manor houses, of irregular plan and with picturesque gables, chimneys and tower. The red brick laid in Flemish bond and the gray limestone about the windows and doorways will give a fine color effect, massed against the wooded hill in the rear."

"The building is approached from Broadway by a driveway with two entrances. In front of the main entrance is the forecourt and a circular driveway. Entering the front vestibule there will be a square hallway, to the right of which will be the reception room. Across the hall are to be the matron's office, and private apartments. On the left will be the memorial parlor, beyond which will be a large dining hall. On the same floor in the north and south wings are to be the bedrooms with ample bathrooms and toilets."

"The second floor will be arranged for sitting rooms, bedrooms, nurses' rooms and diet kitchen. The third floor is to be similarly arranged, the north wing being reserved for the servants. Accommodations will be afforded 50 old people and their attendants."

"The basement will contain the kitchen, laundry, servants' hall, steam boiler room, the heating plant, cellar in main building and north wing. The basement of the south wing will contain a fine smoking room and billiard room for the old men, the gardeners' room and toilet. The whole building will be heated by steam and lighted by electricity."

"The interior finish throughout will be of hardwoods, including the floors, and walls and ceilings will be done in simple colors. The plumbing will be of the latest open pattern, the floors and dados, the matron will be able to communicate by a house telephone with any part of the establishment. Each floor in each wing and the main building will have fire hose at convenient points. An hydraulic passenger elevator will be placed in the lower staircase, running from the basement to the third story."

"The staircases are to be surrounded by brick walls and so arranged and connected with the corridors on each floor as to give easy egress in case of fire."

"It is the intention of John Nevins, of New York and Miss Ida Mason of Boston, the executors of the will of Mrs. Julie F. H. Nevins, to fully complete and equip the building as a memorial to her husband Henry Coffin Nevins, and provide a pleasant and comfortable home for the aged and incurable in their declining years."

"Very careful attention and study has been given by the architect, H. M. Stephenson of Boston, to carry out in the minutest detail the intentions and purposes of the testatrix."

"Dr. George E. Woodburn and L. E. Barnes of Methuen, the building committee, are giving constant supervision to all the details of the work."

FUNERAL OF WOODBURN J. NICHOLS.

Funeral services for the late Woodburn J. Nichols were held at the home on Gage street at two o'clock Monday afternoon. The services were of simplest nature and were private. From 11 to 1 o'clock an opportunity was given to friends to view the remains, and many availed themselves of the opportunity. A large number from the Methuen cotton mill, where the deceased had been employed for 40 years as foreman carpenter, showing their respect in this manner.

There were many beautiful floral tributes including emblematic pieces from Hope lodge, I. O. O. F., and John Hancock lodge of Masons, together with many others from individuals.

The service at 2 o'clock was conducted by the Rev. W. R. Libby, and was attended by only immediate friends and relatives and by a delegation from Hope lodge, I. O. O. F., including the noble grand David S. Eme y, Vice Grand Leroy D. Howard and six pall bearers, John S. Tapley, Edwin J. Castle, Robert Moffatt, Garville E. Foss, George W. Barnes and Edward Doyen. Burial took place in Walnut Grove cemetery.

DEATH OF MRS. GAGE.

Mrs. Laura A. (Smith) Gage, widow of the late Sidney P. Gage, died Sunday night at the home of her sister, Susie C. Smith, 11 Loyal street, Dorchester, aged about 64 years. Her death was the termination of an illness that had extended over a period of many years. She has borne her affliction however, with much fortitude. She had resided in Methuen up to about five weeks ago, when she removed to Dorchester to live with her sister. She was forced to take to bed as soon as she arrived there, and never left it.

Mrs. Gage was a native of Salem, N. H., where she was born Sept. 23, 1841, the daughter of Francis S. and Susan C. Smith. She had lived in Methuen about 25 years. Her husband died several years ago. She is survived by three brothers, John F. Smith of Haverhill, James H. Smith of Methuen and Charles B. Smith of Bradford, and two sisters, Margie A. and Susie C. Smith of Dorchester. She was a member of the Salem, N. H. colony, United Order of Pilgrim Fathers.

POPULATION OF METHUEN.

The census reports given out Monday show the population of Methuen to be 5678, a gain of 52.71 per cent since 1895, when the population was 5,690. Methuen has the largest increase of any of the towns mentioned in yesterday's report. The increase is even higher than the most sanguine expectations of the residents of the town. It is said that the largest increase has been in the east part of the town, which has been built up as a residential district. The Arlington district and Arlington Heights, too, show a good increase, it is said.

SALEM DEPOT, Aug. 15.—One of the most stupendous undertakings ever attempted in southern New Hampshire, if not the entire state, is well under way here and the work accomplished commences to give a faint idea to any one at all versed in this line of contracting, of the thoroughness and completeness of all the details connected with it.

This is the New England Broad-gauge track, which is located on the western side of the B. and M. Lawrence division and runs to Canobie lake. The tract of land secured comprises 400 acres and is made up of several farms and buildings now used by the contractor George L. Theobald of Concord to house his drivers and teams. Work was first commenced on July 4th, to move the earth, engineering having been carried on for some previous weeks.

The track will be devoted to runners only and the contracts call for the finest track on earth. This is calling for considerable when one brings to mind the Saratoga and Belmont courses, but those having it in charge believe they can deliver the goods to the proprietors promptly on time and up to the standard.

The chutes are necessary in running the different distances as on the back stretch there will be one project near the finish of the turn. From where the horses will start in this chute, down the back stretch, and around the second turn down the home stretch to the wire will be seven-eighths of a mile.

The other chute will be beyond the head of the home stretch and extends to within a few hundred feet of the trolley tracks to Canobie lake. From there the chute starts in this chute down the home stretch to the wire is a straight-away stretch of three-quarters of a mile. This is the Fidelity course, over which the most valuable stakes for two-year-olds in the East will be run.

The nature of the elliptical course, which is two feet wide its entire length, will be the steep chase course with its hurdles, water jumps and other features, and this track is a mile in length. Inside this track the infield will be leveled off and turfed.

The advantages of the grounds could not be improved upon as the grand stand, 400 feet long and built of steel and concrete will be located on the high eminence west of the home stretch. It will be located 113 feet from the outside of the track and will be sloped to the track.

The stand will be 200 men at work and the track but will be obliterated, so that every one will have an uninterrupted view of the entire home stretch.

At the present time Mr. Theobald has sixty-three double teams, thirty-two singles, or a total of 158 horses and nearly 500 men at work and the amount of earth that is handled each day is enormous.

All the loam is piled in large mounds and will all have to be handled again when the sub-grading is finished as it is to be used as the top soil for the track.

In the home stretch near the wire for an eighth of a mile a cut of fourteen feet is being made, the gravel being used on the turns which are thrown up three and one-half feet. An elegant grove of oak trees will have to come from the infield.

Italians are the mainstay of the shovel brigade and they are housed in a building 220 feet long besides their mud huts. Each man gets his own

HEAVY VEILS NOW THE FAD.

Newport society has a new fad. It's brand new this year and all the girls have "caught on."

If you want to be in the swim now you must swathe your face in a heavy veil.

Society, to preserve its pink-and-white complexion, has adopted this fad when engaged in outdoor pastimes, whether bathing, playing tennis or indulging in other fashionable recreations. It is asserted that the beauty of the bathing beaches is being thus hidden.

There was not a little surprise when the contestants in the lawn tennis tournament of the series arranged by Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Maud Patrick Wallack, Miss Cynthia Rocke and Miss Maud Wetmore made their appearance on the courts wearing heavy veils.

Conspicuous among the young society women ready to compete for the honors of tennis championship was Miss Anna Sands. Her veil, which was tightly drawn across her face just below her eyes, completely hid her features. Others wore similar face protectors, a precaution that has become general at Newport because beauty doctors had recommended it, and what the beauty doctors recommend is law in Newport.

"What is that woman's club aiming at?"
"I don't know."
"I wonder how I can find out?"
"Just let her wait and wait until you see what it misses."—Houston Post.

"Did you notice the impression I made on Miss Stanning?" said the conceited man.

PLEASANT FOR TEA DRINKERS.

"Have a look," said the histologist. And he rose from the beautiful, delicate microscope and his companion took his place.

There was a little fiddling and adjusting of tiny screws. Then the tyro said:

"Ugh! Ghastly! What have we here? A railroad wreck?"

"You are looking," answered the histologist, "at a part of the remains of a Ceylon caterpillar."

He withdrew that slide and put another in its place.

"Another tragedy?" the tyro said. "The remnants of a beetle," the histologist replied.

A third slide was placed beneath the lens.

"This," said the tyro, "should be a battle field."

"It is only," returned the scientist, "a commingling of the desiccated fragments of a fly, a centipede, a moth and a slug."

The tyro yawned.

"Histology is interesting," he said in a bored voice. "Where did you get these specimens?"

"Out of a packet of tea."

"A packet of tea! What kind of tea?"

"Ordinary tea."

"Heavens! I am a tea drinker. Explain yourself."

The histologist smiling, said: "Tea grows on bushes. The leaves are plucked by hand. Imagine yourself stripping rosebush after rosebush, miles on miles of their leaves. Well, that is what tea picking is like."

The native pickers work fast. They pick as many as 25 pounds of leaves a day—a bundle bigger than a man.

"Now the tea plant is the prey of a hundred insects, and the picker in his haste doesn't pause to brush off each leaf, or to wash it, for he works, as we say, by piece work."

"The picked leaves are dried on charcoal fires. They shrivel under the heat and the insect larvae and chrysalids among them change to dust. This dust looks, to the ordinary eye, like leaf fragments, but under the microscope it looks, like you remarked, like an insect railroad wreck or a pigmy battle field. It tastes like—but you know as well as I do what it tastes like."

"Tomorrow," said the other, "I am going to bring some of my wife's tea here to examine with you."—San Francisco Call.

ANTIQUITY OF UMBRELLAS.

Those who suppose that the umbrella is a modern contrivance will be surprised to learn that umbrellas may be found sculptured on some of the Egyptian monuments and on the Nineveh ruins. That umbrellas bearing a close resemblance to those of today were in use long before the Christian era is shown by their representation in the designs of an ancient Greek vase. The umbrella made its first appearance in London about the middle of the eighteenth century, when one Jonas Hanway, it is said, thus protected himself from the weather at the cost of much ridicule.

Powdered rosemary applied to the face was supposed to have magical effects for restoring faded beauty and a bath of rosemary taken three times a day was said to restore youth and vigor. In the language of flowers rosemary signifies fidelity in love. Shakespeare referred to this when he made the old nurse ask: "Do not rosemary and Romeo begin both with a letter?"—that is, with the same letter.—Exchange.

"Do you admire frankness?"
"Yes, answered Miss Cayenne; 'but I dislike unskillful attempts at it. It takes far more than the ordinary command of language for a person to say precisely what he means.'—Washington Star.

"I hear you have named your horse 'Running Expenses.'"
"Yes, when he gets started I can't stop him."—Detroit Free Press.

POLITICAL

Shaw to Virginia Republicans.

The first all white Republican convention ever held in the state of Virginia was that at Roanoke, which was addressed by Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. He said that he came to preach the gospel of American progress. He argued that every industrious citizen is both a producer and a consumer and that the Democrats always appeal to the latter, saying that cheap articles of consumption are the one thing needful to prosperity regardless of who produces them. On the contrary, the Republicans appeal to the producer, saying that the greatest question is the price at which he can dispose of his products, whether they are labor or the results of labor. The opposition promised the consumer "the best market in the world in which to buy." The Republican party promised the producer "the best market in the world in which to sell." He said that business stagnation and panic had marked every experiment with tariff for revenue only.

President Addresses Mine Workers. Mine workers as well as temperance workers comprised the vast throng of more than 150,000 persons who gave President Roosevelt the reception of his life, when he spoke on the same platform with Cardinal Gibbons and John Mitchell, at Wilkesbarre. It was the eagerness of this great mass of people to get near the president that came near causing a frightful catastrophe, those in front being pressed against the ropes by the thousands behind. Only the personal magnetism of the nation's chief as he raised his arms and shouted for order checked the dangerous movement. Cardinal Gibbons, who was the first speaker, said that the president's coming would be a potent factor in cementing the good relations between the miners and their employers.

John Mitchell, speaking for the mine workers, said the visit of the president marked an epoch in industrial history, and spoke of their gratitude for the president's intervention in the great strike of 1902. He introduced the president as one who had spoken for the right of the workmen to organize and who was an honorary member of one union. The president said he was glad to speak to the miners and under the auspices of the C. T. A. U. He pointed out that a man's own qualities were mostly responsible for determining his success. Hence the importance of sobriety and temperance. To be a good citizen a man must first learn to govern himself, and this applied as much to the wealthy as to the poor. The president declared that he strongly believed in trades unions "wisely and justly handled," and that it was the duty of both capitalist and wage worker to seek each other out and endeavor to show broad and kindly human sympathy.

Chicago's Ownership Plans. Mayor Dunne of Chicago has decided that the city should allow the traction companies to continue to operate in the streets long enough to work out their present franchise values, while announcing its intention to take over the lines in the future. In an interview the mayor said that it would be his policy to avoid condemnation proceedings wherever possible because they are so costly. Of the 700 miles of track in Chicago forty miles would revert to the city at the cost price within the next two years, and in three years more the majority of the 700 miles would revert in the same way. After that he says that the remaining roads whose charters are for longer terms will find themselves so surrounded by city lines as to be glad to sell at a reasonable figure. When that time comes, the salaries of employees will be higher and hours of work shorter.

Connecticut Legislators' Graft. The people of Connecticut have been startled by the report from Hartford to the effect that the general assembly, whose session has just closed, expended $15,000 for pens and jack knives for the use of the 290 legislators. This was sufficient to supply each member with three fountain pens and nine knives, but, as a matter of fact, about one-third of the members got only one each.

Governor La Follette's Choice.

At last Governor La Follette of Wisconsin has decided to resign his present office and take the place to which he had been elected in the United States senate and to which he was entitled at the beginning of the special session last March. He will enter the senate at the time of the extra session in November.

The President Warns Trusts.

Before the Chautauqua (N. Y.) assembly, the next day after his Wilkesbarre speech, President Roosevelt emphasized his conception of the Monroe doctrine as free from self aggrandizement and not as a shield to our weaker neighbors. He declared we would not go to war to prevent a foreign country from collecting a just debt or to back up a sister republic in a refusal to pay. Speaking of trusts, he warned that leniency was at an end and said packers would be prosecuted.

LEGAL-CRIMINAL

Wealthy Milwaukee Grafters.

The Milwaukee, Wis., grand jury has indicted Charles F. Pfister, one of the city's wealthiest and most prominent citizens, on the charge of stealing $14,000 from the Wisconsin Rendering company; also against three others for bribery and one for perjury. Mr. Pfister says that the money placed in his hands was expended according to an agreement years ago.

Wife Desertion on Increase.

Magistrate Poole of New York on one day had 100 women in his court, each asking for a warrant for a deserting husband. Thereupon he made the statement that 60,000 wives in Manhattan alone are abandoned every year and that the evil was growing at a rapid rate. He said that the majority of the wife deserters were men of foreign birth.

Connecticut Divorce Decision.

The Connecticut supreme court of errors has just decided that a marriage is dissoluble under the laws of that state when one of the parties to the contract is an epileptic, who has induced the other to marry by falsely representing his or her physical condition. In that state it is against the law for epileptics to marry.

Congressman's Jury Disagrees.

The second trial of the land fraud case against Congressman Williamson of Oregon, Dr. Van Gessner and M. O. Biggs at Portland, resulted in a disagreement, the jury standing six to six after being out forty hours. The case will be tried again Aug. 28.

Warrant For Paterson's Mayor.

After four days of inactivity and indecision following the disappearance of William H. Belcher, the absconding mayor of Paterson, N. J., the prosecuting officers issued a warrant for his arrest, charging embezzlement. The extent of the departed mayor's pecuniary increase from day to day, as light was thrown on his many crooked dealings. The amount was estimated at not less than $100,000. He was engaged in nearly every form of petty misappropriation and forgery. No clew to his whereabouts was obtainable and his description was sent broadcast over the country. At the first meeting of the board of aldermen it was decided to halt all new grants for five months until another mayor is elected. President Young of the board of aldermen will be the acting mayor in the interim.

William H. Belcher.

Rear Admiral Clark Retires.

On his sixty-second birthday, Aug. 10, Rear Admiral Clark, who commanded the Oregon in the Spanish war, retired from the navy.

Battleship Kansas Launched.

The new battleship Kansas was formally launched at the yards of the New York Ship Building company at Camden, N. J., Aug. 12, being christened by Miss Anna Hoch, daughter of the governor of Kansas. The traditional bottle of champagne was broken by Miss Hoch over the bow of the vessel.

Wilson's Antigraft Rules.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is preparing to put into effect two new rules. One is that no employee of the department of agriculture shall be interested in any concern engaged commercially in work with which the employee has to do in his official capacity. The other rule prohibits the interest in any concern which has contracts with the department if the employee is in a position to influence awards.

The investigation of the bureau of animal industry has been taken up. The head of this bureau, Dr. Salmon, has admitted that for six years prior to 1902 he was the silent partner of George E. Howard in the George E. Howard Printing company, which had contracts with the department for printing meat inspection labels. Mr. Howard is said to have invented a label suitable for being affixed to inspected meats. This latest development in the department graft scandal has started anew the rumors of Mr. Wilson's retirement. It is also charged that the bureau of animal industry helps the beef trust in maintaining its monopoly by refusing to inspect the products of independent meat packers.

This, if true, would involve the secretary directly. The secretary throws the blame on congress for not having appropriated the money asked for. More than 60,000,000 animals were inspected last year in fifty-one cities at a total cost of $781,000. It is proposed to charge a fee for inspection as one solution of the problem.

Taft Party at Manila.

Secretary of War Taft, with the party of congressmen and their families and Miss Roosevelt, have been entertained at Manila. At a dinner given by the chamber of commerce 400 guests were present. In a speech made by Governor Wright, he declared that the visit of the secretary proved that the Filipinos would receive a square deal. Secretary Taft said that the pledges made by McKinley would be honestly fulfilled as to the granting of autonomy, but that the people who refused just taxation were unfitted for self government. At a meeting of the sugar planters the congressmen discussed the tariff question and the planters tried to show that if the tariff were reduced that it would not threaten the American sugar industry. In a reception at the palace Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt shook hands with 3,000 persons.

FOREIGN

Discussing Peace Terms.

After being delayed by a fog the vessel carrying the peace envoys of Japan and Russia reached Portsmouth, N. H., where they were welcomed by the governor of New Hampshire and by great crowds of people. From their quarters at the Hotel Wentworth the envoys proceeded to the new storage house in the navy yard, which had been fitted up specially for them by the government. It was agreed that each side should speak in its own language, but that the written exchanges should be in French, and the Russians submitted their credentials. The Japanese had left theirs at the hotel, but later in the day produced them, and both sides were satisfied. Next day Baron Komura submitted the terms of peace in writing and acceded to the request of the Russians for time to study the terms and make a written reply, pending which the conference adjourned. Although both were pledged to secrecy, it was guessed that Japan's terms included the reversion of Port Arthur and the Liaotung peninsula, the transfer of the Chinese Eastern railroad from Port Arthur to Harbin, the evacuation of Manchuria, the cession of the island of Sakhalin and the recognition in principle that Japan was entitled to an indemnity. The Russian reply was a firm refusal on the two main points of indemnity and Sakhalin Island cession. Peace hope waned. The czar remained warlike, the milkado obdurate.

Parliament Prorogued.

With the prorogation of parliament Premier Balfour found himself still with a majority of seventy-one in the house of commons, or ten less than he had last February.

Gomez Defies Palma.

Jose Miguel Gomez, governor of Santa Clara and Liberal candidate for the presidency of the island of Cuba, has defied the power of President Palma to suspend municipalities without reference to local authorities. He says that the supreme court cannot be relied upon because of its partiality to Palma, and adds that the whole island is a powder mine containing a lighted fuse already half burned out.

Students Control Boycott.

Consul General Rogers, at Shanghai, China, says that the students are in control of the boycott situation and that the government is powerless against it. The anti-American movement has spread to Siam, where the dealers are cancelling orders for American goods.

France Calls on England.

The French war fleet, consisting of three battleships, four cruisers and eleven small craft, arrived at Portsmouth, England, for a week's stay as the guest of King Edward and the British navy. The French fleet, in command of Vice Admiral Caillaud, was met by an immense British fleet and by King Edward in person. In welcoming the French officers at dinner, King Edward said he hoped that the visit would emphasize the good feeling existing between the two countries. This visit is in return for that of the British squadron at Brest.

Venezuela Annals Grant.

Venezuela Roosevelt is informed that the federal court of Venezuela has decided against the Bermudez Asphalt company, by annulling the so called Hamilton concession. The attitude of this country is not likely to be known until Secretary Root returns to Washington.

Oscar to Quit His Throne.

King Oscar of Sweden has expressed his intention of handing the government over to Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus in order that he might seek rest and strength. He denied the report that he had changed his mind about letting one of his sons become the king of Norway.

Russians in Sakhalin Surrender.

An official report from Japan tells how General Liapoff, the Russian governor of the island of Sakhalin, while being pursued by the Japanese, sent word under a flag of truce that he desired to surrender. He said he was forced to do this from a sense of humanity in being unable to succor the wounded from lack of bandage material. The Japanese commander demanded the delivery of all war supplies and property uninjured, including maps and records of administration. On July 31 General Liapoff, 70 officers and 3,200 men of the Russian garrison surrendered.

PLANS FOR THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' CONVENTION.

The annual meeting and outing of the County Commissioners' association of Massachusetts in Clinton, Aug. 23, will call together a gathering of the men who directed the affairs of the various counties in the state, and incidentally some of the best known men in the state. There will be a banquet and an inspection of the Wachusett reservoir.

The association which comprises within its membership all the county commissioners of the counties in the commonwealth, has an annual outing and meeting each year in some section of Massachusetts, and this year will go to Worcester county for their meeting.

George W. Cook of the Worcester county commissioners is secretary of the County Commissioners' association of Massachusetts, and will send out the announcements for the meeting room, which announcements will contain a list of the membership of the association.

Capt. Emerson Stone, chairman of the Worcester county commissioners, who died a few weeks ago, was a familiar figure at all of the meetings of the association, and was a member of the legislature committee of the association, which committee keeps track each year of the measures which are introduced in the legislature which have to do with counties and county affairs, and in his death the association lost one of its most energetic members.

The commissioners of a county hold one of the most important offices in the county, and among other things they have the care of the county buildings.

Whenever the county expenditures exceed the appropriations for the year, the law requires that the commissioners in their report for the year make a full and specific statement as to those items in which the excess occurs, and the revised laws require that the commissioners make an annual report which should embody whatever action they have taken in these matters. Highways and townships, state highways, repairs on county buildings, salaries of county officers, county debt, county taxes, county assets, expenditures, exceeding appropriations.

Every year the county commissioners of all the counties are called upon to pass upon various petitions relating to the relocation of ways, and in some of them the commissioners take a view of the premises in question and listen to the argument of counsel where such appear.

Claims against the county and a host of other matters of a routine nature are every week taken before the county commissioners for their consideration and in their trips to various parts of the county they come in contact with a large number of people town officials and others.

OUTING AT TYNGSBORO.

LOWELL, Aug. 14—Knights of Columbus from Boston, Cambridge, Manchester, Nashua, Gloucester, Peabody, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem, Lynn and other cities and towns were guests of Lowell council Sunday at the grounds of the Genoa club in Tyngsboro.

The Boston members of the order came by special car and were joined at the steamer landing by members from Lowell and other cities.

The party was taken to the club grounds in the steamer Gov. Allen from Lowell, the sail up the river occupying about an hour and a half.

Among those on board the steamer and in the club house later were: State Deputy Joseph C. Pelletier, State Sec. William J. O'Brien, State Auditor Robert J. Thomas, State Chaplain Rev. Fr. James N. Supple, District Deputies Edward L. Arundel, Louis Watson, John B. Dore, William Heffernan, William E. Daily and Jas. J. Donahue, PFD Daniel E. Pendergast and many others.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 17—Senator Moody Kimball last night announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for county commissioner to succeed Commissioner Sawyer of Beverly.

This makes four candidates for the position, Ex-Senator Charles O. Bailey of Newbury and Messrs. Derbyshire and Cogswell of Lawrence.

Mr. Kimball is just completing five years in the legislature, three in the house and two in the senate. He was recently a prominent candidate for appointment as postmaster here.

FACT VS. FANCY

"What would you do," she asked, "if you had taken me away out in the country in your automobile?"

"But I have no automobile."

"O, well, we will suppose that you have one, and that you had taken me away out in the country 20 or 30 miles from here, and it was getting late, you know—sun going down behind the western hills and whippoorwills calling and all that sort of thing—and suddenly, when we were in a very lonely place, far, far from any human habitation, it should—"

"Why, there isn't any such place within 20 or 30 miles of here. This part of the country is all thickly settled."

"But this is simply imaginary. We will suppose that you have taken me away out to this lonely spot, and suddenly, just as it is beginning to get dark and we are there all alone, with dense woods on both sides of the road and probably not another person within miles and miles of us, the chain breaks and we have to stop, and—"

"If I were getting an automobile I'd either get a chainless one, or one with a chain on each side, so that such an unfortunate thing as you suggest couldn't happen to us."

"O, well, if you think it would be unfortunate, let's go in the house and talk about the outlook for the apple crop or something of that kind."—Chicago Record-Herald.

County Affairs.

One of the most encouraging movements of a long time, in the county commissioner fight is the entrance of Hon. Moody Kimball of Newburyport as a candidate to succeed Sawyer of Beverly. The situation up to date has not been promising for a satisfactory change at the coming republican convention. The Lawrence end of the county is bound to be divided between two candidates provided Thos. Cogswell and J. H. Derbyshire persist in staying in the fight and the only other new candidate was ex-Senator Bailey of Newbury.

Either Mr. Cogswell or Mr. Derbyshire would make an excellent county commissioner but the practical view of the case politically would not seem to make either's chances for success very good if both stay in the fight. Mr. Bailey has been an active candidate for any and every old thing in the line of a county office for some time. He was an active opponent to Mr. Jenkins when the change was made in county treasurer, and has continued to line up his forces for commissioner since that time. His reputation as a senator would not seem to afford very much encouragement for those who want the affairs of Essex County conducted upon the highest plane of business efficiency.

We welcome the entrance of Mr. Kimball into the fight not as a party organ but as an exponent of good government taking satisfaction over every first class man who seeks to enter the public service. Mr. Kimball has been a city official of Newburyport, a state representative and senator. In every place where he has been tried he has stood high as an honest and efficient public servant. We believe strongly that some man from this end of the county should be chosen to succeed the present commissioner, and every effort should be made to that end. If such a result cannot be attained, Mr. Kimball's candidacy affords decided relief to those citizens who have no further use for the kind of men offered for some time back by the other end of old Essex.

How Far Shall Envy Ride?

A gentleman who has been very successful in his business recently remarked to the writer, "how far is this agitation against wealth to go before it spends its force?" and continuing in comment upon the subject he told of the fear that was growing up among wealthy people for the effect that some of the pleasure their wealth afforded to them might have in the agitation. "There is food for much thought in this query, but we very much doubt if there is to be any serious result to come. The law of compensation is very firmly established and after all the great mass of people yield to the inevitable and here in the United States watch for their own turns. The man who 'makes good' is most heartily given full praise for his work as a rule, and when he wants to enjoy the fruits of his success he is usually not only allowed, but encouraged to do so. Once in a while this era of good feeling between the 'haves' and the 'have-nots' gets a shock, but that usually is only when some useless inheritor forgets the hard kicks that won the wealth he is wasting.

Editorial Cinders.

It begins to look as if there might be another side to the frequent arrests of automobilists for speeding through Reading and North Reading. Several cases were brought into court at Malden one day this week and the judge continued them for several days that he might investigate the conditions. The truth is dawning upon many citizens that the whole question of regulating speed upon the highways is a very much involved one. Too many police officials have gone at it wrong end first. They have looked upon the law as if they were designed to afford an opportunity to punish somebody, instead of being framed to protect the other users of the highway. A hundred times as much good could be done by punishing one scorching who races down Andover hill across Morton street to the menace of life and limb of many others who may be on the street, as can be done by arresting a hundred drivers on the open highway between Andover and Reading. The reign of sense needs to set in for the guide of law enforcers as well as for law breakers, and it would appear that the Malden judge is inclined to help such a reign along by a little personal investigation.

The tax rate is most gratifying. While the assessors seem to have done their work most acceptably, the largest cause for the present good rate goes back to last March when good judgment ruled the annual town meeting. In no branch of economy is the saying more true that "it is what is spent and not what is earned that makes wealth" than in the handling of town affairs. Andover may well take pride to herself that her great public works are all finished, and her expenses are henceforth to be confined to keeping in order a fully equipped plant. The rate under such conditions would seem to be fixed for a long time with the natural growth of income caring for the natural increase in expenses.

POPULATION OF ANDOVER.

Figures are Less than were Expected by Many Well Informed.

6630 souls all counted, is the verdict for the new census of Andover.

The result is certainly a surprise to those who should know but what to expect from the census just completed.

The gain is less than ten per cent, notwithstanding the fact that in the past ten years all of the mills and business enterprises have shown a good gain. Of course this does not include Ballardvale and it is possible that the loss there is accurately set forth as enough to offset the gain in other parts of the town. The figures are as follows:

Population	1895	6145
Gain in ten years	485	7.89 per cent.
Males	3130	Females 3500.

Sports For Labor Day.

The regular meeting of the Andover Athletic Association was held in the Club house on Tuesday evening. This was the first meeting to be held in the new house and the members felt greatly pleased to have such a commodious and comfortable house to meet in.

Several matters pertaining to the welfare of the organization were discussed and the most important of which however was about holding a field day on Labor Day. It was finally voted to have a few races and a baseball game. The races will be limited to the members of the Association and those wishing to compete may become members by handing their names to any of the officers or to members who have subscription papers. The first payment of dues must be made before September first.

The events will include: 100 yard dash, quarter mile run, broad jump, sack race and potato race. The committee in charge of the sports is made up of the following: William C. Crowley, Thomas Maloney, Daniel J. Moynihan, John F. Sweeney, Laurence Hannon. Suitable prizes will be awarded in each event.

A committee was elected to make preparations for the football season and to look up material for a team. This committee is composed of Thomas Maloney, William Hardy and Arthur Stewart.

The reports of the various solicitors showed that a good amount of hustling had been done as there were many names presented for membership.

The meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday evening when it is hoped that all the members will be present as important business will be transacted.

Camp Broken Into.

Sometime during Friday night or Saturday morning the camp owned and occupied by Rev. Markham W. Stackpole and family was entered and the contents stolen. The camp is situated about one half a mile from the residence of Joseph W. Smith who is the father of Mrs. Stackpole, and is in a thickly wooded portion of his estate.

Rev. and Mrs. Stackpole and child have been sleeping in the camp every night for several weeks for the benefit of the baby's health but on Friday night the rain storm was so violent that they were compelled to sleep in the house. This afforded thieves a good opportunity to secure their booty and the opportunity was not lost.

Entrance was easily effected and everything movable was taken, including bedding, stove, wearing apparel, etc. On Saturday Chief of Police Frye was notified and he investigated with the result that the whole of the stolen goods were recovered. They were found about a mile from the camp on the ground neatly packed, with a rubber blanket covering them and were returned to the owners. The goods are valued at between sixty and seventy dollars.

It is said that the police have strong suspicions against some young men of the village and developments may result later.

Defendant Failed to Appear.

The case against Mrs. Henry Provo of Abbott Village which was to have been held on Monday evening before Judge Stone was indefinitely postponed as the defendant failed to appear.

The case was one which grew out of a recent trial when Mrs. Provo was fined $20 for disturbing the peace and resisting an officer. At this trial several witnesses appeared against the defendant and since that time she has borne them a grudge.

On Saturday night while under the influence of liquor Mrs. Provo again created a disturbance by insulting the witnesses with indecent language. Each one came in for a share of abuse sprinkled thickly with oaths. A warrant was sworn out for her arrest and it was served by Chief Frye on Monday. She was ordered to appear before Judge Stone on Monday evening but she did not put in an appearance. Judge Stone then ordered the court dismissed.

Officer Jaquith went to the home of Mrs. Provo and did not find her at home. She has not been seen in town since and it is thought that she has disappeared to avoid being sent to jail.

Entertainments for Next Week.

At Glen Forest all next week there will be something new in the line of entertainment. This will be a comic opera entitled "When Reuben Comes to Town."

This is the first season that this piece has been given in anything but the regular high priced theatres of the large cities, who play only in the fall and winter and it is expected that it will draw enormous audiences at Glen Forest the coming week.

The play deals with the adventures of a gay young sport who is living in the city on the money furnished by a rich old uncle who passes his life on a farm. The uncle decided to come to New York and find out just how his nephew is conducting himself; whatever he discovers, and the result will all be explained in the play. A large chorus of singers and dancing girls will also be introduced. The characters are all well known and are a jolly lot from start to finish.

"When Reuben Comes to Town" will appear every afternoon and evening at Glen Forest beginning Monday, August 21st, for one week only.

Reception for Andover Lady.

Mrs. Charles L. Carter is one of two women who are to be tendered a reception in Georgetown next month.

The citizens of Georgetown will hold an informal reception in the Old South First Congregational church vestry on Wednesday, Sept. 13, from 2 until 5 p. m., in honor of those who have served for many years in the capacity of teachers in the town. The ladies of the town consider it a pleasure and privilege to give honor to whom honor is due, especially to three daughters of the town who for many years were faithful teachers and two of whom are yet spared to honor and bless their native town by their gracious presence, which is like a benediction upon it. These ladies are Miss Sara E. Horner and Mrs. Charles L. Carter of Andover, who was Miss Sarah N. McLaughlin. Miss Horner commenced teaching as early as 1846, at the age of 18, and continued to teach successfully public and private schools until within a few years, having taught 50 years. Miss Sarah N. McLaughlin, together with Miss Sarah A. Lowe so recently deceased, commenced service as teachers soon after being graduated from the first Georgetown High school, a private school held in what was then known as Tenney's hall, the second story of the present residence of Dr. A. C. Reed. Miss McLaughlin continued to teach until her marriage to Charles L. Carter of Andover. Miss Lowe continued to teach until a short time previous to her death. The memory of these ladies is held very dear by many who today can count the silver threads among the gold and darker locks. Their methods of instruction were so thorough and their influence so sweet and helpful that as time passed on every son and daughter of the town whose privilege it was to have been a pupil of theirs was qualified to enter the higher schools and colleges, also to fill honorable positions offered them at home and abroad. Other teachers, both whose term of service was of shorter duration, are many, and the ladies would be pleased to meet them all. Invitations will be extended to the teachers of the town together with the superintendent of schools and school committee.

A Heavy Storm.

Although no serious damage was caused by the storm last Friday night the ferocity of the lightning aroused no little uneasiness among many in town as it was feared that a repetition of the storm of June 26 when damage to the amount of several hundred dollars was done by lightning, would be the result.

Only one bolt is known to have struck in town and this caused but little damage. The bolt struck Gibson's laundry entering the rear by a gas pipe. A hole was broken through the side of the pipe near the metre through which a stream of flaming gas poured. People who were passing noticed the blaze, and notified employees of the Lawrence Gas company who turned off the gas.

Assessors Have Completed the Work and Have Fixed the Rate at $16 per 1000.

The assessors have completed their work on the valuation of the town and have set the tax rate at $16 per 1000. In many of the surrounding towns the tax rate has increased, especially in North Andover where the increase of $1.50 makes the rate $17.50. Andover's tax payers may well consider themselves fortunate in maintaining such a comparatively low tax rate.

The following table will show the valuations of the different districts of the town:

Enjoyable Fishing Trip.

The fishing trip conducted by Thomas Bentley last Saturday was without doubt one of the most enjoyable and profitable ever conducted by the well known fisherman. Everything went off without a hitch and there was no long wait for the boat, which caused so much discontent on the previous trip.

The party left town on Friday evening and arrived at Marblehead shortly after nine. They immediately boarded the Edith A., captain G. C. Sherburne and at one o'clock Saturday morning the anchor was raised and a moonlight sail out of the harbor was enjoyed. An early arrival at the fishing grounds was made and the fishing began.

After dinner a sail down the harbor was enjoyed. All the members of the party were well pleased with the trip. The prizes for the fish caught were as follows: Largest fish, William Allen, $2.75; largest number of fish, Joseph Pitman, $2; smallest fish, Ralph Upton and Cutter Foster, 50 cents each.

The following were in the party: Frank K. Dodge, George Muise, Joseph L. Pitman, Max F. Lucke, Cutter Foster, Fred Rogers, Leonard Saunders, James McKnight, John Conter, William Allen, W. S. Bentley, C. H. Williams, A. P. Richardson, David O'Connell, Malcolm McKernan, Ralph Upton, Harry Abbott, Edward Manning, James Coates and Thomas Bentley.

A HOT fire, but—A cool kitchen!

Is there no heat with a gas stove?

Of course there's heat—the very best and most effective kind.

It's heat that heats the food, and not the whole house.

It is not fickle heat. You can depend on it absolutely. You can have several degrees of heat (for several kinds of cooking) at the same time.

Each flame is as steady as clockwork.

You can time your cooking in advance if you have a gas stove.

And the instant your cooking is done you can put the fire entirely out.

ZIONS 80; ANDOVER 39.

The Zions won their eleventh successive game of the State league series by defeating Andover on the South Lowell grounds on Saturday.

They have now only one more game to play, the Mohair Reserves on Chelmsford Street grounds next Saturday 19th and no doubt the team will try and add another victory. Having won the championship of the Merrimack division, they will be required to play the winner of the Boston division, which is Chelsea, and the winner of that game will be admitted to the State League Senior Division. It is hoped that the league committee will order the game played on Mohair ground, which has without doubt one of the best wickets in the state.

Trouble Ahead for Commissioners

HAVERHILL, Aug. 16.—Mayor Wood will not press his petition for an investigation into the official acts of the Essex county commissioners if they will give the city what it desires in the bridge building matter, but he is considerably stirred up over the delay in answering a letter he sent them Saturday.

In an interview he says that if they don't get a move on and do something besides dallying so that they can put the matter over until after election, and thereby pull Commissioner Sawyer through a bad hole, he will take the action he started to take several weeks ago. He claims their delay is only an attempt to keep him from showing Commissioner Sawyer up and a part of their plan to retain Sawyer for another term.

The mayor started a petition asking for investigation several weeks ago, and the commissioners immediately held a conference and agreed that the old plans should be used for the new bids as long as the city's representatives desired them. But since that time there has been no move in the matter and the mayor is ready to resign his petition. He says the commissioners promised him that the old plans would be back from New York last week, but he has received no notice of their return, and accordingly wrote the commissioners, asking the cause of the delay, and also, if the plans had arrived, but has received no answer. The mayor declares the commissioners do not dare start the work for fear of election defeats.

Phelps at the Finish.

After examination of the early proprietor's books, and the deeds of those who first parted with the land taken by Edward Phelps, I find that he bought the lot of Job Tyler in North Parish, and the division lots that fell to it after that date brought his outlying land north and east of Blanchard's lots, and near Haggetts pond. But he bought more of Russe and Chandler, which brought his holdings nearer the West meeting house. Samuel Hutchinson and others took the North Parish lots, so that in the days of Samuel and Francis Phelps, the surviving members of migrations were all located around Haggetts pond and in the Merrimack woods, and, having intermarried with Danes and Chandlers and Moorar, we can guess that the last holdings of Chandler Phelps, one-fourth of a mile north of the church, and that of Joshua, grandfather of the late residents of this estate near the pond and the Lowell railroad, indicate the main holdings in West Parish. John Godfrey, of Ipswich, also sold 40 acres to old Edward in 1660, apparently held by mortgage from Job Tyler, so when we, some time in the future, proceed to locate the Tyler lots, something more definite will be found of the North Parish home of the first arrivals of Phelps infants.

Samuel Phelps and his wife, Priscilla Chandler, lost the eldest Samuel at Lake George in 1750. His brother, Joshua, born 1738, married Lois Ballard, a daughter of old Deacon Hezekiah Ballard and Lydia Chandler, so related closely to many allied families here—Dane Holt, Deacon Nathan Abbott, and many others, who may not know how it is they are cousins to Phelps blood.

Henry Phelps married Mary Ballard, a cousin of his sister-in-law, Hannah married Benjamin Moor of Lewiston, Me., and Priscilla married Philmon Dane (called Daniel in the Phelps book). These are best known to us from continued residence. The children of Joshua include Lois, wife of Isaac Blunt, jr., represented still by Charles Blunt and the family of the late Samuel, Hannah married Nathan Abbott, and one of her children was our faithful carpenter, Nathan, who was well known in my childhood on the list of Abbott and Clement's men. The only son who survived, Joshua Phelps, born 1774, died in 1801, and his wife, Mary Gilson of Pepperell, of a family allied to other lines here, lived to 1856. In the next generation we are all familiar with the quiet lives at the old homestead still standing in the West Parish, a fine model of its style, held by Joshua, wife Dorothy Watson, from Sandwich, N. H. He was the third of the name to hold the estate, where he died in 1873 at 76, she passing at 84 in 1880. After a life of journeying to and fro across the country, Joshua died here from an accident, in 1886, a single man, following his brother Asa, who died, 1862, in California. Mrs. Gilman and her sister, Dorothy Phelps, were the last to hold the most ancient of the Phelps' estates in direct line. Samuel Phelps, son of Joshua, was a blacksmith, latest at Syracuse, N. Y. Mary married Levi Bean in 1819, Lydia married Jonathan Abbott, jr., Henry, born 1807, and his wife, Eliza Merrill, well known by her remarkable strength which sustained her through long years of sorrow and care, and who recently died in North Andover with her daughter, represent the Joshua line. Henry Phelps and Mary Ballard saved Mary, who married Joseph Chandler in 1806, in the line of Mrs. Peter Smith, and Chandler Phelps, who died at 82 in 1868.

Most of Chandler Phelps' life was spent, I should judge, on what very likely was the oldest holding in West Parish of the early Samuel, if I can judge from legacies of heirs and sales to the neighbors, before his day. He married twice, Lydia Parkhurst, a Chandler cousin, and mother of the children, and again, Hannah Frye Ballard, daughter of Hezekiah. Only two children grew up, Herman, wife Esther Merrill, and Jacob, who died at 31, leaving a widow, Rebecca (Chandler), who married John F. Russell of Wilton, N. H. Herman is represented by Frank Chandler Phelps, wife Abbie T. Hardy, and several in the tenth generation in his family; and a brother, Herman, and wife Ellen Ward, I have with three children and not traced outside as yet. Frank Phelps has our banner family in the line holding this name, though there is plenty of the blood here. Samuel, Francis, and his wife, Phebe Holt, an aunt of Dane Holt on Prospect Hill farm, born 1722, had by their alliance a chance for a large and long-lived family. The Phelps' book says he lived awhile in Hollis, N. H., and died in Pepperell, Me.

So many errors cling to this line, that I hesitate to back up this statement till verified. The date of his death, 1758, at 38, and the widow's second marriage (by book) with Thomas Marshall, very likely determined the home of the children who "pop up" unexpectedly in Tewksbury, Mass., when they were old enough to marry. Timothy of Hollis and Hanover, N. H., Phebe, born 1750 outside of Andover, so here in Andover at 16, in 1766 warned by authorities as to her lack of claims on pauper accommodation, in case she came to grief, (a great benefit to genealogists was this sweeping warning out of Essex County in 1766), and Joseph, born 1748, of whom the book and I agree mainly in the two wives he annexed, Ruth French and Isabel Dutton, and he lived in Tewksbury.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

On Saturday evening, Aug. 12, at the Boston Rovers club room, Jamaica Plain, the annual meeting of the Merrimack Valley Association Football league took place.

Two delegates from each club were present, representing the following clubs: Merrimack, Messrs. Albert Douglas, George H. Hill; Methuen, Thomas Hamer; Andover, Daniel Maguire, Robert Anderson; Lynn, Thomas Forest, Harry Gordon; Fore River, Messrs. Frazer and Stoops; Boston Rovers, Messrs. Dunbar and McCafferty; Quincy and U. S. Bunting, were absent.

The following officers were present: President, Edward J. Hogan, Lynn; Vice President Thomas T. Hartley of Lawrence; Treasurer George H. Hill, Lawrence; Secretary Thomas Barker of Jamaica Plain. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A communication was received by the secretary from the secretary of the Lawrence Cricket and Athletic association, seeking admittance to the league for the season of 1905-6. After considerable debating on the question, Mr. Hartley taking a very active part in behalf of Lawrence, the matter was laid on the table until the next regular meeting, Sunday Aug. 20, in the Lynn club rooms at 2.30 p. m.

The following officers were elected separately by acclamation: President, Edward J. Hogan of Lynn; vice president, John T. Hartley of Lawrence; recording secretary, Thomas Barker of Jamaica Plain; treasurer, George H. Hill of Lawrence (Merrimack club). A communication from William Connors of Andover as referee was accepted for consideration.

The following were appointed as a board to examine applicants for referee, Messrs. Frazer, Dunbar and Forest. It is hoped by the board that all applicants as referees will apply at an early date in order to be examined and appointed previous to the season opening, as there is very little time to get all the preliminaries prepared for the early part of September when the championship season will open.

The schedule in all probability will be drawn up at the next meeting, also the new by-laws will be adopted. The 10 mile radius adopted last season and considered by many absurd, will be the opinion of the various delegates be discarded for next season. The rule referred to is Article 20, reading thus: "All players must live within a 10 mile radius of home club rooms and any player signing for a club cannot play for any other club for that season." Article 21 may also be discarded. On the whole the outlook is good for a prosperous season. Various new players will be seen in action during the coming season, not only with one, but many of the clubs.

It has been announced that the Corinthians at the last moment decided not to come to America, and a team has been selected instead to come later and play for a cup valued at $500 to be presented by an English nobleman.

Celebrates Seventh Birthday.

Miss Mildred Jaquith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Jaquith, celebrated her seventh birthday by entertaining fifteen of her young friends last Saturday afternoon at her home on Whittier street. The children had a fine time playing games, after which dainty refreshments were served.

HAT REFUSES TO COME OFF.

She was pretty but rather unduly plump, yet no one would have dared to tell her so, or even to study her generous figure too critically, for she was also middle-aged and dignified and sufficiently self-possessed to come to the theatre alone at night. Her seat, in the middle of the row, was the only one left vacant when she came down the aisle, and people sitting there viewed her with some anxiety when they observed her ample size.

When the curtain had gone up without her removing her hat a man immediately behind her leaned over and asked her if she minded taking it off. Without turning or replying she put both arms up and began to tug at a hat pin. Slowly some of the things on her lap began to slide off and the opera glass bag with its contents reached the floor before she made a grab for them.

It was clearly impossible for her to stoop over straight in front of her. The man on each side, desiring to get the tax, went through a little pantomime of the Gaston and Alphonse variety with each other, and then a "some instant made a dive for the glasses. Their heads came together in a rebounding whack just above the lady's knees, but one of them arose with the glasses in his hand and gave them to her.

Then she bunched all her things in a wad on her lap and started to work on the refractory hat pin again. It balked at first, but finally came with such a rush that her elbow went fairly into the eye of the man on the right. She put the pin in her mouth with the point toward the man on her left side and then her neighbors at sides and rear saw, with rising perturbation that there were still two pins to come.

The man behind her leaned over and said: "Pray don't trouble yourself further, madam. It's of no consequence. I can see very well as it is." The man on her left dodged wildly for fear she would turn her head in his direction with the long pin in her mouth pointed toward him. But she did not turn. She went at the pins again. Things slid off her lap, but neither of the men at her side dared to reach for them. She tugged and tugged and the man behind her begged her again to leave the hat where it was.

She paid no attention, however, and at last the head covering came off. She was flushed and hot and her hair was bloused and tousled and her queen-like dignity was no longer in evidence. The stage villain meanwhile had laid bare his prospective criminality and the curtain went down on the first act without any one in the vicinity having known what the play was all about.—Philadelphia Record.

LABOR

Telegraphers' Strike.
Governor Johnson of Minnesota offered his services as mediator between the striking telegraphers and the officials of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern.

Governor Johnson. These men who had been active in bringing this strike about should never again enter the employ of the road. He declined mediation.

Bakers Want Better Conditions.
The Hebrew bakers in the east side section of New York city have been engaged in a bitter strike for better conditions as to pay and hours of work and for recognition of the union. The employers finally decided to grant the ten hour day and to pay $20 a week to first hands and $15 to second hands, but refused to make a contract with the union and declared for open shops. This proposition was scorned by the strikers, who said no settlement would be considered that did not start with recognition of the union. When bread and flour were imported into the district from other cities fierce mobs of strikers and their sympathizers wrecked stores, emptied barrels of flour into the streets and trampled the bread under foot. Policemen who attempted to protect the nonunion workmen were beaten, missiles being hurled from windows and roof tops.

General Organizer Heinz of the International Union of Bakers and Confectioners announced that the executive board of the New York union had decided to order a general sympathetic strike. Many of the boss bakers closed shop for fear of violence and claiming lack of police protection.

Relief For Chicago Teamsters.
The annual convention of the International Association of Teamsters at Philadelphia was marked with many stormy sessions, chiefly over the calling of the sympathetic strike at Chicago by President Shen, who was taken to task by Vice President Casey. Shen defended his course, and when the agent of the department store drivers telegraphed from Chicago that some of their men were still on strike, with no Sunday dinner in sight, $2,000 was promptly voted for relief. Besides this $2,000 was given to the truck drivers, $1,000 to the lumber teamsters, $2,000 to the expressmen and $500 to the piano drivers.

Bridge Workers Strike.
The officers of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' association have ordered a general strike against the American Bridge company, affecting from 15,000 to 20,000 workers in different parts of the country. The point involved is not wages or hours nor union recognition. The company has had a working relation with the union. The trouble is over the erection of bridge work for the New York and New Haven railroad. The company let a contract for this work to the lowest bidder, who happens to be regarded as "unfair" by the union leaders. The union is opposed to all subletting.

INDUSTRIAL

Enormous Crops Assured.
The government crop report for August makes it certain that the year's yield will break records. The condition of corn was 89 as compared with a ten year average of 85.4. This means a crop of 2,700,000,000 bushels, the greatest ever recorded. The total of winter and spring wheat may reach 700,000,000 bushels. Oats are marked 92.1 as compared with a ten year average of 83.7, and barley at 89.5 as compared with a ten year average of 85.1.

Wireless Line to Hawaii.
The Pacific Wireless Telegraph company has begun the construction of a wireless telegraph station on Mount Tamalpais, ten miles from San Francisco, in the expectation of establishing communication with a station in the Hawaiian Islands, 2,000 miles away.

The P. R. R. Tunnel Approaches.
The method and point of approach adopted by the Pennsylvania railroad for its new Hudson river tunnel into the big New York terminal have just been made known by the beginning of work on the great salt marshes west of the Palisades. The approach will be by the little town of Kearney, on the extreme western line of the meadows, where the Passaic river flows. This is eight miles distant from Weehawken heights, where the deep tunnel shaft is in process of construction. The roadbed from Kearney, together with enterprises contemplated by the Lehigh Valley, Erie and Lackawanna, is expected to result in filling in the entire area of mosquito breeding marshland. From the west side of the palisades the tunnel, a mile long, will carry the road downward to the head of the river tunnel. It is expected that electric motors will be used to haul all trains into New York city.

U. P. R. Favors White Chefs.
For several weeks the colored cooks of the dining cars on the Union Pacific railroad have been giving way to white men, until not a single colored chef remains. The reason for this change is said to be that the white cooks are more neat and clean in their methods, although it is admitted that the colored men's cooking is often superior in quality. The colored waiters are to be retained.

The New Turbine Line.
Details of plans for two new turbine steamships to be built at Chester, Pa., for the Metropolitan Steamship company, with which to inaugurate its passenger service between Boston and New York one year from date, have just been published. Each will have three turbine engines, aggregating 10,000 horsepower, and a speed of twenty knots an hour is required. The cost of each will be about $1,000,000. Heretofore the Metropolitan has done only a freight business.

COMMERCIAL

Hill Gets Wisconsin Central.
A Chicago report says that James J. Hill and his associates have secured control of the Wisconsin Central as another outlet for traffic over the Burlington.

To Bridge Grand Canyon.
The latest tourist scheme in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado will be an aerial car line spanning the great gorge at its widest point and carrying passengers from the bottom of the trail to the top of the plateau, 8,000 feet in height.

Internal Trade Conditions.
The department of commerce and labor reports a decrease in the total grain receipts and shipments at interior markets for the past six months, although corn moved in an exceptionally heavy volume. There was an increase in the handling of cattle and other live stock.

Would Supervise Grocers.
The idea advanced by H. M. Goldberg, a San Francisco (Cal.) dealer, in a letter to the American Grocer, is that the grocery business should be considered as a public utility and the people who govern a grocery business should be under supervision. This might mean less groceries, but better ones, and the concentration of the traffic. The plan is commended by the editor of the American Grocer as the only practical policy which will give power to organization. The writer makes a plea for more idealism and more seriousness among the merchants themselves. He thinks it is hopeless to get anything out of the manufacturers in the way of a positive guaranty as to their products.

RELIGIOUS

Catholic Abstainers Convened.
The thirty-fifth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, at Wilkesbarre, Pa., was made memorable by the benediction from the pope, by the presence of Cardinal Gibbons and by the address of President Roosevelt.

Cardinal Gibbons. The total of the organization being now slightly over $0,000. President-Bishop Canevin of Pittsburgh, in his opening address created much applause by declaring that there is with the union a mingling of religion and politics, because politics means the application of the gospel to public affairs and the daily lives of men. Cardinal Gibbons, although admitting that he was not himself a temperance man, commended highly the work of the union, with religion as its guide. He said he was temperate.

Plan For Protestant Merger.
The date of Nov. 15 has now been fixed for the coming interchurch conference representing 18,000,000 Protestant communicants throughout this country. The place of meeting is to be Carnegie hall, New York. The programme includes sixty speakers, and bishops of nearly all the Protestant churches will preside. The questions to be discussed are religious education, evangelization, missions, fellowship and Christian progress.

British World's Congress.
A summary of the proceedings of the recent Baptist world's congress at London, the first of its kind ever held, as given by the Congregationalist, shows that 3,500 delegates were present, representing 6,000,000 communicants. Dr. Alexander McLaren presided.

SOCIOLOGICAL

Public Ownership Investigation.
In view of the rapidly increasing interest in the subject of municipal ownership the executive council of the National Civic federation has appointed a commission composed of representative men in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and several other cities to make an investigation in this country and in Europe of the whole subject of national and municipal ownership and operation of public utilities. This investigation is expected to show the actual result so far obtained as a solid basis upon which to discuss the question in future. Each system is to be examined with regard to its effect upon wages, hours, conditions of labor, collective bargaining, cost and character of service, political conditions, civil service spoils system and municipal corruption, financial results and taxation.

Anticigarette Law Futile.
Press reports from Indianapolis and other points in Indiana indicate that the new and rigid anticigarette law is practically useless. One result is that the old law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to children is practically a dead letter. This condition is due to the fact that there is no statute to prevent the sale of tobacco in any form to a person of any age. Consequently minors are buying smoking tobacco and using cigarette paper sent through the mails from points outside the state.

SCIENTIFIC

Another Polar Balloon Trip.
M. Marsillac, a French balloonist, untroubled by the tragic failure of Andre, is preparing to explore the north polar regions in an up to date dirigible balloon. He expects to keep in constant communication with Spitzbergen, the point of departure, by using a wireless telegraph outfit. A storage battery will be charged to operate the motor for 200 hours. The basket is square, fastened to the balloon by a mantle, and is large enough to allow the occupants to lie down. It is made buoyant so as to serve as a boat in case there should be a fall into the sea. Numerous scientific instruments will be taken along, including a novel apparatus known as the thermogen, which is expected to negative the effect of the cold on the gas in the balloon.

Explorer Fiala Rescued.
The steamship Terra Nova has reached Norway from Franz-Josef Land with the shipwrecked crew of the Ziegler expedition which left Tromsø, Norway, June 20, 1903, headed by Anthony Fiala. Mr. Fiala reports that his ship, the America, was crushed in the ice pack a year ago last winter. The highest latitude reached was 82 degrees and 13 minutes. One Norwegian of the crew had died. The rescue was due to the effort of W. S. Champ, in command of the relief expedition, which for six weeks held its way through solid floes of ice to the point where Fiala was stranded.

MISCELLANEOUS

Uncle Sam Fights Fever.
In response to the invitation of representative bodies in the state of Louisiana and its fever stricken city of New Orleans the marine hospital service, by direction of the president, has taken entire charge of the much befuddled quarantine situation. At the same time Governor Blanchard and the state board of health have declared war on the arbitrary and illegal quarantines set up by various towns and villages, insisting that through freight, mail and travel be uninterrupted under certain proper restrictions as to fumigation, etc., consequently the shotgun quarantine is losing headway. The Mississippi authorities do not, however, agree with the Louisiana idea of mosquito extermination as the principal means of prevention. Dr. J. H. White was placed in command of the marine hospital work at New Orleans. The whole city is to be fumigated by districts, the expense of sanitation having been guaranteed by local bodies. Dr. Wadsworth is in charge of the Mississippi quarantine. Many towns were already suffering for want of food, ice and medicine, and the Louisiana rice crop was going to waste.

The city and country were shocked by the death of Archbishop Chapelle from yellow fever. Several cases of yellow fever developed among steamship arrivals at New York and Philadelphia. The death rate was steadily declining, having dropped from 25 per cent to 17 per cent.

Accidents.
Owing to inexcusable delay in shoring up a pillar in the construction of a subcellar to the Myers department store at Albany four floors suddenly fell, carrying down thirteen employees to sudden death and scores to injury.

The Hoboken (N. J.) terminal station of the Lackawanna railroad and one ferryboat were totally destroyed by fire Aug. 8. Although the loss was figured at $500,000, it might be said to be in reality a gain, as the structure was about to be torn down to make way for a new $2,000,000 terminal plant. No lives were lost and a temporary shed enabled traffic to proceed in a couple of days as usual.

Fire destroyed the famous Protestant Episcopal church of St. Thomas at Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, New York, in the millionaire section of the city, Aug. 8. The loss was estimated at $400,000, including many valuable works of art.

The biggest wooden vessel afloat, the American four masted schooner Roanoke, of Bath, Me., was destroyed by fire Aug. 10 while loading at Noumea, New Caledonia.

Deaths.
Archbishop Chapelle of New Orleans and papal delegate to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines died at New Orleans from an attack of yellow fever. He was the first distinguished victim of the present epidemic.

Captain Evan P. Howell, one of the founders of the Atlanta Constitution and father of its present editor, Clark Howell, died at his Atlanta home at the age of sixty-six.

General Roy Stone, the famous civil war veteran and civil engineer, died at Mendham, N. J., aged sixty-nine.

Alexander M. Bell, father of Professor Alexander Graham Bell, died at the Washington home of the latter. He was known as the inventor of visible speech. Age eighty-six.

THE TURN OF LIFE

A Time When Women Are Susceptible to Many Dread Diseases—Intelligent Women Prepare for It. Two Relate their Experience.

The "change of life" is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

Every woman who neglects the care of her health at this time invites disease and pain.

When her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, the tendency is at this period likely to become active—and with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and flizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are all just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried thousands of women safely through this crisis.

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and it will be furnished absolutely free of charge.

Read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I had been suffering with falling of the womb for years and was passing through the change of life. My womb was badly swollen, my stomach was sore; I had dizzy spells, sick headaches, and was very nervous."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Mrs. A. E. G. Hyland

"I wrote you for advice and commenced treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as you directed, and I am happy to say that all those distressing symptoms left me and I have passed safely through the change of life, a well woman. I am recommending your means to all my friends."—Mrs. Annie E. G. Hyland, Chester-town, Md.

Another Woman's Case.
"During change of life words cannot express what I suffered. My physician said I had a cancerous condition of the womb. One day I read some of the testimonials of women who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it and to write you for advice. Your medicine made me a well woman, and all my bad symptoms soon disappeared."

"I advise every woman at this period of life to take your medicine and write you for advice."—Mrs. Lizzie Hinkle, Salem, Ind.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle it will do for any woman at this time of life.

It has conquered pain, restored health, and prolonged life in cases that utterly baffled physicians.

STANDING AND AVERAGES IN CRICKET LEAGUE.

The Boston Cricket Club, in its game with Brockton at Franklin Field Saturday, made no mistakes and by the fine bowling of Keene and Perkins dismissed the Brocktons for 44 runs, after Boston had made 74. This forced Brockton into sixth position. Boston batted first, every man contributing a few runs, O'Connor making a superb 20. Brockton, after compiling 37 for five wickets, went down very fast, Perkins taking three wickets with four balls. Grant and Williams made the only stand. Tuckman getting four wickets for seven runs.

One of the most surprised teams in the league was Bunting, defeated on its own grounds by Lawrence, before a fine crowd of spectators. Doubtless attracted by the fine form displayed by Bunting in preceding games. For Lawrence, Gill, Hodgson and Rogers did some very fine batting. Watson c Bunting being the only one of reach double figures. The bowling of Wade was responsible for this, as he took eight wickets for 25 runs. For East Boston, the five for 27. Thus put Lawrence on equal terms with Lynn for first honors.

Lynn and Everett clashed at Lynn Saturday, but the game was clouded owing to darkness. In the second division, Highlandville administered a fine trouncing to East Boston Reserve, making 77 runs for six wickets. East Boston managing to secure only 54. For Highlandville, Shephardson, Carter and Gorse were the chief scorers. Shephardson taking five wickets for 25 runs. For East Boston, Everett put up a nice game for 25 runs. In the Merrimack Valley division, Zion is still undefeated. At the end of the season, this team will meet the winners of the Boston division to determine the championship of the second section. Methuen, by defeating the Lawrence Reserves, finishes in the second place, this being its last game in the league series.

AGED MAN STRUCK BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Sheehan Manning, an old man about 60 years of age, was struck by a motor car while crossing Essex street at Hampshire street, Saturday night.

A large crowd was gathered at the corner and saw the old man go down. His legs were thrown some 15 feet. Harry Mosher was driving the car and showed wonderful control of the car, stopping prostrate man.

Dr. John J. Bartley was standing at the corner of the street and saw the accident. He rushed to the spot and with others bore the unconscious man into Forrest's drug store where restoratives were applied. It was some time before he came to. Dr. Bartley made an examination but found no bones broken. The man received a severe shaking up and numerous bruises, but as far as could be established is not injured internally although he expected blood at one time.

Manning was removed in the police ambulance to his home, 224 Hampshire street. He is now resting as comfortably as could be expected.

MAY HOLD AN EXTRA SUPERIOR COURT SESSION.

With about 2500 civil cases on the docket of which about a thousand are from this end of the county, it is very probable that an extra session of the civil superior court will be held at the local county court house in January if a judge can be procured to sit at such a session. It is all the more probable that an extra session is called for next month in Salem to dispose of the cases from that end. The upper Essex bar is making an endeavor to have such a session called.

Judge Gaskill will sit on the sessions of the superior court which convenes Sept. 11th and Judge DeCoursey at the civil session which comes in on Oct. 17th.

There is some foundation for the fear that the local murder cases will be held at Salem instead of at the local court house as is generally supposed. The facilities at the local building are much better than at Salem and as the parties interested here is no reason why the cases should not be held here.

PROVOKING MISTAKE.

The caller was angry, and even beligerent. "I want an explanation and an apology," he said. "In your paper this morning you had an account of the wedding at the Smiths' last night, and you spoke of the joy that attended the happy pair as they went to the altar. Now, sir, I am the editor. I wrote it 'Joy'!"—Chicago Tribune.

The guileless village maid was about to visit the city for the first time. "Remember, daughter," said the anxious mother, "if any of those bad city men try to flirt with you don't pay any attention to them."

"But how about the good men, ma'am, dear?" asked the pretty daughter, anxiously.—Chicago News.

The middle of August and Labor day only three weeks away, finds the season here at its height and business at the various hotels rushing. Over Saturday and Sunday the hotels and cottages were all full, some even being compelled to turn guests away.

August will be a banner month for Lawrence on every side. As the rushing. During the past few days there has been a veritable milk famine owing partly to the large number of people here, and also on account of the heated weather which has made it almost impossible to keep milk. Sunday was a big day here, and all day long the cars brought in heavy loads.

The theatrical performance in the evening was the only real attraction of the day. Wednesday promises to be one of the biggest days of the season, it being Haverhill Grocers' day, while Amesbury day at Hampton beach will add materially to the size of the crowd here. The police are making a number of raids, in some cases good results are being realized, but on the whole the beach is very orderly and quiet.

GLAD IT WAS OVER.

"From what I know of his tastes and tendencies, I am not at all surprised that Grover Cleveland should prefer to keep out of politics," recently remarked a friend of the ex-President.

"I remember that when he stepped out of office at the end of the second term as chief executive he felt vastly relieved. His spirits rose with a bound. A few days after the inauguration of President McKinley, Mr. Cleveland was in New York and I happened to walk down Broadway with him. He was beaming, and was taking note of the interesting things about him, with all the zest of a big hearty boy just out of school. The shop windows were engaging not a little of his attention. Upon a man into one of them, then a photographer, he stopped short. In the window was an oil painting of himself.

"Well, well," he exclaimed, with a laugh, here is the most interesting thing I've seen yet. It's old Grover. Let's see what he looks like. Mr. Cleveland and his portrait looked at each other for a moment, and then the ex-President remarked with a chuckle: "So this is the man we have all heard so much about; I must say that this picture makes him out a good deal better looking than some of the portraits I have seen of him in the newspapers. He looks healthy, but a little worried. I would be willing to wager that he's glad he's no longer President."—Success.

WHITE LINEN GOWNS.

The leading fad of the Summer is white linen gown and costume, for which all kinds of linen are employed, from the coarse French variety to the sheerest of lawn. Costumes in cut and skirt styles, worn with sheer lingerie waists, are in great variety, and there are coats long and tight-fitting, the coatee more than half lace or embroidery, and nondescript little garments that are a cross between a cape and a bolero.

Openwork embroidery is still the rage, and must continue in favor so long as it is so difficult to obtain; it is eminently suitable and chic for trimming of gowns of heavy linen. There is an abundance of very sheer embroidery employed for the trimming of sheer linen lawn, in connection with handwork, and some of the daintiest and prettiest models are of handwork combined with a profusion of insertions and frillings of val lace.

"PAUPERISM"

Rev. Clark Carter Delivers Interesting Address at Methodist Church, Lawrence

At the Haverhill street Methodist church Sunday evening the Rev. Clark Carter, city missionary, preached on "My Neighbor, the Pauper," taking his text from Deuteronomy 15-11, "The poor shall never cease out of the land."

He said in part:

"If the residents of Lawrence should pass in review before the doors of this church in single file, they could easily be so arranged that, without duplication, every twenty-sixth person would be a pauper. There would be other poor people in the line: Aged men and women with feeble step and sunken cheeks, who have finished life's toil each twenty-five or thirty years; men and women with marks of evil thoughts and sinful practices upon their countenances, who have spent money for that which is not bread, and their labor for that which satisfieth not; young men and maidens who are idle, unenterprising, criminal; little children, who are ill cared for by underwise or unrighteous parents; hundreds of these thousands, and mingled with all these the saintly poor who are bearing their burden of want in silence, neat in personal appearance, gentle in speech, unobtrusive, industriously using their little strength to keep soul and body together and at the same time to reflect a ray of glad sunshine into some life sadder than their own. But regularly following on after each twenty-five or thirty years, there would be a pauper; a man or woman or child, whose need was so great, so exceptional, so sad that there could be no remedy of it by near relatives, by kind neighbors, by charitable societies or by the church, only by acceptance of cold public aid from the treasury of the city through the office of the overseers of the poor."

"The report of the state board of charity for 1904 shows that for the twelve months ending on March 31 of that year Lawrence provided for 2408 paupers. In the state of Massachusetts there were a few more than 76,000 paupers. But Lawrence reported more than her proportionate share, 38.49 for each 1,000 of her population. The rate for the whole state was 27.37. There were 298 cities and towns with a lower rate of pauperism than ours, and ours has risen rapidly in five years from 22.6 per 1000. These are suggestive figures. I need not ask you for pity for these paupers, for you already pity them. You pity those whom we call the 'deserving poor,' the people who are poor not at all by their fault, but only by their misfortune. You pity even more the 'undeserving poor' because they are undeserving. You pity them because they lack energy, thrift, moral fibre, ambition. But these paupers you pity most of all. You pity them so heartily that you do not rest. You ask the cause: 'Why are there so many paupers?' You ask the means of prevention: 'How can we keep the uncounted poor from slipping into pauperism?' You ask the question: 'How can at least some of these paupers be recovered to a self-supporting and hopeful life?' Finally you ask about the confirmed paupers: 'Are their needs adequately, humanely supplied?'

"First, When we consider the cause of poverty while often similar, it is not identical with the cause of pauperism. Many a person lives years in poverty without seeking pauper aid; and there are others who voluntarily apply to the overseers of the poor for relief, who are poor not by fault of character, but by the force of circumstances. We are all acquainted with people whom it is difficult to aid in any way. Their spirit is so high that to receive a favor seems degrading. Such persons endure much privation before their nearest friends realize their condition. To publish their needs is to their shame. To receive aid is to them from an overseer of the poor is worse than death. There are others who look upon the public treasury as their right and who seem blind of an excuse to make demands upon it.

"The cause of pauperism is chiefly moral. It is to do with character. Doubtless that is the reason why pauperism cannot wash off the taint of disgrace, even where the sufferer is blameless. Cyclones, shipwrecks, railroad catastrophes, conflagrations, business depression, sickness, old age cause poverty. They destroy property and cut off the ability to earn a living. But the brave soul rises superior to disaster, gives a cordial farewell grasp to the hand that helped to rise, and starts anew to grasp success from adverse circumstances. It is the whining coward or the covetous mercenary who allows his name to be written on the pauper list, and drifts without effort.

"Blameworthy are we, however much we pity the poor, if we lazily refer them for relief to the public treasury. Until all other sources of aid are exhausted, we have no right to advise our friends to relieve poverty by pauperism. Our lazy kindness to the poor becomes their greatest curse. It is not this the reason that Lawrence has a disproportionate share of paupers? Instead of patiently studying the cause of poverty, we have sent them to the city hall for a dole of provisions or fuel? Is there not danger of our teaching the foreigners who are crowding the city a lesson which will be costly to us and degrading to them? The most disastrous idea to be put into the heads would be that any thing but honest hard work is worth while in this country. Hard work has made it worth coming to; beggary, deception and indolence will not maintain its attractiveness.

"Second, 'Your next question is, 'how can the poor be kept from slipping into pauperism?' Not 'alms,' but a 'friend,' is the motto of the Boston associated charities. What we all need is a friend. If we are poor, we especially need someone wise and resourceful to advise us. Miss Mary E. Richmond, now with the Philadelphia society for organizing charity and for several years a wonderfully efficient charity worker in Baltimore, has illustrated this sentiment in her own work, and has published valuable suggestions for the guidance of others who desire to help the poor. She would have us see the importance of finding in the needy persons themselves the latent resources for self emancipation.

"Third, 'We come now to your question of recovery unwisely our city has permitted many of her poor people to become paupers. It will be harder to restore them to self-reliant citizenship than it would have been to prevent their original lapse. But all of those who are at present aided as paupers are not hopelessly beyond restoration. What can be done for their recovery? It is a personal question. Is it not?

'What ought some one else to do?' It is, 'What can we, average citizens, honest patriots, do?'

"To begin with, we can look into the matter. We can inquire who these paupers are. A year ago a young man stumbled onto the fact that certain widows who were receiving aid as worthy dependents on public charity were carrying on thrifty enterprises as illegal liquor sellers. In their kitchen bar-rooms they were exposing their own children to the polluting conduct and ribald conversation of drunken men and women. One of the widows had quietly taken to herself a new husband as her partner in the discreditable business. This woman's aid was cut off. She and the others were raided by the police and all were fined. If you want to do something to further good government in Lawrence, you might inquire whether through the overseers of the poor your taxes are helping pay the lawyers' fees and the fines.

"You might at the same time make inquiries as to whether there are any unworthy cases carried on the books of the pauper department. The clerk is not omniscient; he has not time or office help to enable him thoroughly to investigate the 300 or more new cases which apply to him every year. He has little opportunity to keep informed concerning the old cases. Perhaps others of his widows have remarried. Perhaps some of his bankrupts are laying out a bank account. Perhaps some of his aged invalids are heavily insured in favor of speculating traders or of relatives who will not use the death benefit to relieve the city of expense on the death of the pauper. Last year a man died after being aided by the city. His wife and

BLUE STOCKINGS VOTE TO DISBAND.

A meeting of the members of the Blue Stocking club was held Monday night in the club rooms on Water street. President Edward E. Curley presided. It was voted that the club disband. All bills have been paid, and the club goes out of existence with a clear conscience in that regard. The organization of the club was effected about four years ago and for several seasons was represented by strong base ball teams. Of late interest has waned in these sports and many of the members have gone elsewhere and the club simply became a social organization. The name Blue Stockings will still live as will their successes on the gridiron and on the diamond.

A SPECIAL TOWN MEETING.

It is probable that the selectmen will call a special town meeting to be held in a few weeks for the purpose of taking action on the matter of procuring funds with which to complete the improvements already commenced upon Pond street at Flats bridge. The County Commissioners have appropriated the amount of one thousand dollars towards making the improvement but it is expected that to complete the work it will take nearly three thousand. The town may vote to raise this amount but can not appropriate it from this year's tax levy as the rate has been fixed, and the manner in which the money will be spent all mapped out. The town may make an issue notes to any amount payable next year to cover the expense of completing the improvement and this will probably be done.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MILLS.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Mills of Lowell was held on Sunday afternoon from the home of her brother, John Mills on Merrimack street. The services were largely attended.

People were present from Pawtucket, R. I., Lowell, Wakefield, Lawrence, Maynard, Methuen, North Andover and other places.

The remains were placed in a fine oak casket, with silver trimmings.

The engraving on the plate read: "Martha Mills, died Aug. 11, 1905, aged 74 years."

A beautiful collection of choice floral offerings, brought by loving hands, were arranged about the bier.

The services, conducted by the Rev. George E. Sanderson, pastor of the M. E. church, were of a simple, yet impressive character.

After reading comforting scriptures, the officiating clergyman delivered a touching eulogy, dwelling upon the noble character and fine traits of the deceased.

He closed by offering a tender prayer full of hope and sympathy.

Under the direction of Richard A. Redman, the following members of St. Paul's vestry choir exquisitely rendered the hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," George S. Carter, Ralph Carey, sopranos; Harold Redman, George Knowles, altos; Arthur Highton, Robert B. Houghton, tenors; Carl Yost, bass.

The body was then borne to the hearse and conveyed to Ridgewood cemetery where interment took place in the family lot, after funeral services by Rev. Mr. Sanderson.

The pall bearers were: Harry Haywood, Wakefield; Frank E. Sanderson, Maynard; Leslie G. Hill, Lowell; George W. Blanchard, all relatives.

Prior to the removal of the remains to North Andover, services were held at her late home, the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Leslie G. Hill, 216 Alken avenue, Lowell, by Rev. N. W. Matthews.

The list of tributes follows:

Last Sunday evening, Aug. 13th, Unitarian services were held in the spacious parlor of the Twin Mountain House, in the room where Henry Ward Beecher so often preached. There was sacred music by the orchestra and a sermon by Rev. Samuel C. Beane, Jr., of the Old North Unitarian Church of North Andover. The congregation was a large one, many being present from neighboring houses, and included representatives of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish households of faith.

INTERESTING TRIP IN AMERICA'S WONDERLAND.

The following interesting account of a trip through America's Wonderland, has been received from Miss Mabel F. Noyes of Methuen:

To travel for hours through miles and miles of dreary desolate Dakota "bad lands," covered with clumps of dry sage brush, seeing an occasional prairie dog to enliven the view, with the hot sun pouring down on only a prairie sun can pour down, "with nothing high to hinder," and then to glide into a cool, green valley with a silvery ribbon of a river rushing and tumbling over pebbly shallows, and a constantly changing line of picturesque snow-capped mountains as a background—well, maybe you wouldn't think "Paradise Valley"—the natural entrance to the valley of the Yellowstone, was rightly named. Taking seats in a six-horse tallyho coach, tourists are conveyed from the station at Gardiner, through the northern entrance to the National Park, under the stone arch dedicated by President Roosevelt, in April, 1903, through Gardiner Canyon, along the river over a road just wide enough for two teams to pass, with cliffs often 1500 feet above the driveway, near crags on which eagles perch, high in the air, bald eagles' nests, from which the mother bird scarce "casts a wandering eye" at us, tourist parties being too frequent an occurrence to stretch one's neck at, and finally, after a five mile drive, the mammoth Hot Springs hotel, our first stopping place in the Reservation is reached.

The Yellowstone Park, set aside by the government "for the benefit and enjoyment of the people" is located in the heart of the Rocky mountains. Its extent is about 75 miles along its northern and southern boundaries and 65 miles east and west. Many of the peaks therein are from 10,000 to 14,000 feet above the sea, and the lowest valley has 600 feet elevation.

Yellowstone Lake is over 15 miles across and is overrunning with fish. The Missouri and Columbia Rivers all have their source in the Park. There are over 500 spouting geysers that throw a column of hot water 30 to 250 feet in the air at intervals varying from one minute to two weeks. There are obsidian glass cliffs, beautiful waterfalls, sulphur hills, thousands of other things of interest and last but not least the grand canon of the Yellowstone, ten miles long and some 1200 feet in depth, with two magnificent waterfalls, and the most brilliantly beautiful colored landscape and scenery in the world.

There are wild flowers of every hue and infinite variety, from the pale cream of the live-forever, to the deep flaming red of the "paint brush"—there are blue lupines, fringed gentians, larkspurs and monkshood, foxgloves, columbines, yarrow and wild asters. There are many wild animals in evidence, from the driveway, including the saucy, scolding chipmunk, the staid gray squirrel, the homely ground hog with its inequitable nose, coyotes, beavers, "fretful" porcupines, prairie wolves, elk, deer, the stolid bison, and the brown and grizzly bears. You have a special entrance fee, you may take your fill in gazing at them all, but no fire arms are allowed in the Park, except those of the Guards, so all animals roam about unmolested.

There is a U. S. Cavalry Post located within the boundaries and during the season cantonments are scattered through the traveled portions to protect the various objects of interest, see that no specimens are removed, prevent the spreading of campfires and see that the game is not molested. We bought our tickets in "Bosting" for the five and ten half days tour through the Park—said tickets including meals, lodging and transportation.

Wouldn't you like to follow us on our trip, and see how the U. S. "Transportation Company" handles the immense crowds passing through, at the rate of 100 to 150 a day?

We have dinner at the Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel, and then start out for our first view of the wonders near at hand.

Liberty Cap, one of the oddest sights, plainly seen from the highway, is a plain hot spring cone, over 50 feet high and 20 feet in diameter at its base. It was formed by the over lapping layers of deposit through the spout at the top. As its name indicates it much resembles Liberty Cap. The Mammoth Hot Springs are in the shape of terraces the Minerva terrace which is a stantly changes its overflow and sometimes disappears entirely. Articles of iron, glass or any hard substance placed where the water can run over white deposit.

Jupiter terrace is the largest of the group and most brilliantly colored. The Devil's Kitchen, near by, is the crater of an extinct spring. One can enter it with safety down a small ladder through an opening 6 feet wide, but the peculiar atmosphere gives one a desire to seek the fresh air as soon as possible.

The following morning, at 8 o'clock all tourists assemble on the wide plaza—The yellow, four horse coaches, in which parties tour through the Park, arrive in great numbers. These coaches hold 11 passengers, three on each of the three covered seats, and two more up high by the driver.

As each coach drives up, the manager calls out the names of the passengers for that rig, their luggage is loaded on the rack at the back and off they go, and another coach drives up to be similarly loaded.

If several friends wish to be fellow-passengers it can usually be arranged by speaking in advance to the clerk in charge, otherwise parties are made up of strangers, but to busy man, one sometimes wonders what shake of the kaleidoscope of Fate arranges the combinations seen on some coaches—Ours was a very congenial group, however. The same passengers keep the same rig or coach throughout the five day trip, and before the second day has passed we are usually well acquainted. Often a coach load arranges to dine at the same table through the trip, making a family party as it were.

Each passenger has a chance to "sit up aloft" in the coveted seat by the driver as of course the best view is obtained therefrom.

Twenty miles are covered in this first trip before lunch—passing among the "hoodoos" or Goblin land, a wild, hitherto inaccessible region, with strange, weird stone of lava figures or images, through an abrupt turn between great blocks of limestone 75 feet high, called the "Silver Gate," then through a rugged pass, with rocky cliffs 200 to 300 feet high, covered with yellow moss, and so called the "Golden Gate." Next to the obsidian driveway this was the most difficult piece of work encountered by the expert engineers.

Electric Peak over 11,000 feet above sea level gives a most wonderful display during thunder storms. All tourists are expected to alight and quaff of the waters in Apollonia Spring which has most contain water good for one, but has a most abnormal flavor, and a very little of it goes a long way. Two miles or so farther on is a mineral glass or obsidian cliff, and we drive over the only glass roadway in the world. It is black and glistening, and parts of it look as if polished. Do you know how the engineers managed to cut a road through this formation? Well, they couldn't blast it, so they built huge fires around the blocks of glass, then suddenly cooled them by dashing cold water upon them and shattering them into small pieces. Quite a scheme wasn't it? This obsidian is most desirable for arrow heads, so this cliff used to be a great resort of the Indians and was "neutral ground" to all the Rocky mountain tribes.

Not far from this cliff is Beaver Lake with several beaver dams across it, and some inhabited beaver houses. It is too bright and sunny for the occupants to be in sight, however. At noon we reach Norris Lunch station, and each coachfull, as it is called, lines up and marches into the dining room for lunch. There is plenty for all, as a telephone message has been sent ahead giving the number of tourists en route.

The next morning we start off again at 8 o'clock, but have only a short drive of some three hours, passing some beautifully colored springs and lakes, reaching the Old Faithful Inn about noon, and not leaving until the next morning, giving us time to inspect the most beautiful and interesting stopping place of all in the Park.

The Old Faithful Geyser, to many the most wonderful of all among the incomparable objects, is the attraction here. It is only a few rods from the hotel and as we drive up it proceeds to hospitably welcome us by "biovling up" in its most approved manner. It is the most reliable geyser here and every 60 to 70 minutes, day and night, summer and winter, gives its exhibition, sending a column of hot water, two feet or more in diameter, upwards some one hundred and fifty feet, where it remains stationary for three or four minutes. This magnificent spectacle with its ever shifting background of light and shadow will never be forgotten. There are other "spouters" named at hand, the Giant, sending scolding water some 250 feet high, but this only plays about once a week, and is not to be compared to Old Faithful, which never disappoints one, but is always true to name. A rival of the geyser, however, is found in the name named after it. The architect had certainly a master mind. It is the most wonderfully planned and unique bit of architecture, yet cunningly simple and primeval in appearance. It is a long, rambling structure with many peaked dormer windows, two or three rows of them, and a broad rustic piazza. The whole structure is made of large logs, spiked together. In the big hall is a stone chimney, visible all the way to the roof, with fireplaces on each of the four sides. Evenings, fires are kindled there, and a big corn popper, some three feet across, hung by an iron chain from a crane overhead, and holding a peck or more of corn, is put into service, and a slight it is to see the tourists seated around the blazing hearths, waiting for the corn to be popped, and then passing it around in a big, shiny pan, by an attendant from the old hickory rockers in the rustic balcony built all around the big hall. The stairs are of logs, cut in half, making a flat surface to step on, and a winding stair leads up to the roof, where one can go on nights and see the stars twinkling there at the highest point of the roof turned on Old Faithful as it plays. The night we were up there the light was turned on the refuse heaps behind the hotel and we saw three or four bears prowling round it. Either side of the stairways and each gabled window are crooked iron brackets, no doubt alike, yet each pair almost peculiarly curved. These brackets were procured at a certain part of the Park, some few miles away. The electric lights are in the shape of white candles, seemingly speared on nails, in old Puritan style. The walls of the rooms are unplastered, the windows show overhead, there are big, broad window seats, cretonne covered. In each room, the china-ware is a coarse yellow with dark green poppies thereon, the whole scheme having been planned to combine comfort, simplicity and old-fashioned quaintness.

Two other curiosities in this particular region, especially worthy of mention, are the Punch Bowl, a hollowed formation, about ten feet in diameter, with a many hued rim some two feet high, over which the water constantly trickles, the contents boiling over and keeping the colors clean and bright. Then the Morning Glory Spring, a pool some twenty feet in diameter, so named from its shape which exactly resembles that flower, its deep blue walls filled with particularly clear water, giving a color scheme long to be remembered.

The next morning we start out again at 8 o'clock this time for a forty mile ride to Yellowstone Lake. As we drive off we gaze reluctantly backward, loathe to leave Old Faithful, now so gallantly saluting us. On this ride we pass over the summit of a continental divide, where, on one side of the driveway we see a branch of the Columbia on the other side a portion of the Yellowstone Lake whose waters reach the Atlantic via the Yellowstone, Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

The Keppeler Cascades, some 150 feet high, with a background of dark forest, leaping down a rocky stairway, step by step are charming to look upon, but the glory of the drive is the view of the three snow-capped sentinels of the Teton Mts., some 50 miles away. They form part of the boundary between Wyoming and Idaho, and are over 14,000 feet high.

We lunch at the "Thumb" station, where a portion of the waters form in shape the thumb to the gigantic hand of Yellowstone Lake. This is an idyllic spot for fishermen, the waters being full of fish, seen plainly as one walks along the shore. At this place one may catch fish from a rock or geyser cone on the edge of the Lake, and without moving one's steps can drop the trout into a boiling spring, with three feet of the lake, and cook it, without removing it from the line. This sounds like a "fish story," but it differs from most because it is really true, "all things being possible" in this region. There are several geyser cones and paint pots to be seen in the afternoon, some of the paints resembling white lead, others are of strawber, color, and some are blue and yellow. It was on this drive we saw a herd of deer splashing and playing in the water more than twenty rods from the driveway. We watch them sporting about for several minutes until the coaches driving up behind us startle them and they leap and bound up the bank over peak and crag to some quiet retreat known only to them.

There are two falls in the Yellowstone, the Upper, with a perpendicular drop of 140 feet, and a quarter of a mile below are the Lower, or Great Falls, 360 feet high. Not so grand, perhaps as Niagara, nor the height of some of those of the Yosemite, but beautiful, profoundly solemnly still and above all, majestic. A footpath leads to the bottom of the Upper Falls, gazing down the Canyon one sees Point Lookout, some 1500 feet above the river, and directly opposite is Artists' Point, which derives its name from being the site from which was painted the celebrated picture now hanging in the Capitol at Washington.
